Areas of expertise

Angie is a chartered town planner with a strong understanding of the planning system, providing robust strategies from pre-acquisition of land through to the planning and post planning stages of her clients developments. She advises a range of clients including developers, investment funds, landowners, private clients and government bodies.

Angie has been lead planning consultant on multiple projects focusing on town centre mixed use developments, residential, logistics, hotels and offices throughout the UK and also benefits from her experience as a central London planning officer at the London Borough of Wandsworth. She is involved in all aspects of the planning process, from advising on initial concept and acquisition of land to preparing planning applications, managing consultant teams and negotiating acceptable planning permissions with Local Planning Authorities.

Angie is a Chartered Member of the Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI) and an Associate Member the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors (RICS), Chair of Quod's Commercial Property and Logistics Board, Member of the British Property Federation Industrial Land Committee and Member of the Business London Industrial and Logistics Sounding Board.
