Areas of expertise

Having recently completed his Masters studies in Urban Design and City Planning at UCL, Alex is working to develop his skills and experience in the private sector. Since joining Quod, Alex has had the benefit of working in a range of planning areas spanning residential, retail, leisure and commercial. Alex assists on planning and regeneration projects in the office. His role includes undertaking site appraisals, planning policy analysis and the preparation and submission of planning applications. He is developing a comprehensive understanding of the planning system through the preparation of planning advice to clients across a number of sectors. Alex is currently working towards full membership of the Royal Town Planning Institute.

An undergraduate placement with a local planning consultancy presented Alex with the opportunity to learn about the different approaches and priorities of planning and he is now involved in the preparation and submission of a wide range of complex applications. Some of the projects Alex has worked on during his time at Quod are detailed below:

Key experience

Creechurch Lane, City of London – Alex is part of a team acting for Merchant Land in relation to the re-development of an existing office building to provide a new 22-storey office building with retail unit at ground floor in the City of London.
